Legislative Update

Mike Beasley, the lobbyist for the Colorado Chiropractic Association, reflected on his 14-year tenure and highlighted the challenges in healthcare policy, including strained hospital resources and rising insurance premiums. Looking ahead, Mike emphasized the need for the association to be more proactive in advocating for chiropractors, drawing parallels with the experiences of physical therapists.

He also discussed the need for reform in co-payment and deductible policies, referencing previous concussion protocols from 2010 and ongoing conversations with the legislature and physical therapy association.
